PASTOR MILKS COWS; FORCED TO RESIGN

Congregation Objected to His Menial Occupation.

RECEIVED SMALL SALARY

Preacher Lost His Place Because He Found it Necessary to Supplement His Yearly Income.

EAST DOUGLAS, Mass., June 5 .- Several ethical questions likely to prove of interest to the pastors and congrega-tions of small churches in country towns are involved in the matters leading up to the resignation of the Rev. Edward B. Blanchard, of the pastorate of the econd Congregational Church, of this have to do with the ethics of the relations existing between pastor and people may be given in this: Shall the pastor a small country church, said pastor having a large and growing family on his hands, hustle on the side to eke out an income sufficient for his needs?

Milked Own Cows.

Separate minor questions having cor lation to the main one, as summarized above, may be mentioned as follows: Is it beneath the dignity of a minister of the Gospel to milk three Jersey cows and sell their milk and cream as a means of adding to the family exchequer?

May a minister of the Gospel raise vegetables for the sustenance of his family and to sell? Is it incompatible with ministerial functions for a minister to be a mem-ber of the school board? And can he be held blameworthy if he takes the school census for a remuneration of 5 cents a head? All these questions have had to do with the Rev. Mr. Blanchard's resigna-tion. Two years ago the Rev. Mr. Blanchard, who had been pastor of the Congregational Church in Brookfield for eight and a half years, came here as pastor of the Second Congregational Church. He had preached several trial sermons, and made so fine an impression that the supply committee insisted on his moving here and taking the pas-torate. They wanted him so badly that they gave him a contract for two years instead of engaging him for a year at a time, as had been the custom.

Supported Family on $1,050 a Year.

Although there are a number of wealthy and a larger number of well to do members of the Second Congregational Church, the salary offered the Rev. Mr. Blanchard was only $800 a The pulpit supply ouldn't raise the salary, but allowed Mr. Blanchard to preach at Douglas Center Sunday afternoons, his salary there being $5 a Sunday, or $250 a year, counting out two weeks for vacation.

To eke out his meager remuneration Mr. Blanchard has kept cows and sold milk, has raised and sold vegetables, took the local school census, and, in addition, served as a member of the school board. His parish held a series of meetings in which these acts of the pastor were seriously considered, and generally disapproved, some of the church members even going to the extreme of complaining that the odor of the dairy farm accompanied the pastor to the pulpit. Things were made so uncomfortable for Mr. Blanchard, who is a graduate of several colleges, that he finally resigned. ounting out two weeks for vacation.
